

Learn more about our new Residents!

Dina is originally from NYC where she completed her undergraduate degree in Neuroscience and Behavior at Columbia University. During this time, she volunteered as a Peer Health Educator and taught health education to local middle and high school students. This is when she realized that she can combine her love of teaching and medicine into a career as a family medicine physician.

She looks forward to being in the position to not only educate patients on preventative health, but also build long lasting relationships across generations. In her free time, she loves discovering all the hiking trails in our area. She also enjoys cooking big Sunday meals for her friends and family!

Annie grew up in San Diego. She was a freelance illustrator and photographer. In her free time, Annie likes to sing, play piano, draw, and occasionally make costumes. She also enjoys escape rooms and playing board games.

Sahar was born and raised in Northern California and moved to Los Angeles in high school. She was grateful to be able to stay in Los Angeles for both college and medical school.

She loves to teach and taught math to elementary school students before going to medical school. She enjoys traveling and exploring different cultures. Her favorite countries to visit are Scotland and Iceland. In her free time, Sahar loves to go on monthly brunches with her friends and explore all that Los Angeles has to offer. In particular, she loves to go to theme parks. She also enjoys working on crafts and making miniatures out of wood and clay.

Harika is one of three siblings, and loves to spend time with her family and friends. When she is not busy, she likes to do yoga, read, play golf, exercise, and spend time in nature. She likes to learn about psychology, dermatology, women's health, spirituality, different cultures, languages and food. She is a fan of comedy TV shows such as Modern Family. Harika's hidden talent (and procrastination activity of choice) include spring cleaning and decluttering spaces to feel larger and lighter on the mind.

David Chen grew up in Los Angeles. He studied Biochemistry at the University of California in San Diego. He received his osteopathic medical degree from Touro University in Vallejo, California. His interests include listening to music and enjoying long-form dramatic television. His hobbies include playing the cello, running, and science and technology.

Jenny was raised in the SF Bay Area by parents who are both practitioners of Traditional Chinese Medicine. She first exclaimed wanting to be a doctor to her grandmother when she was 5 years old because she worried about the effects of aging on her grandmother's health.

Other than her medical interests, Jenny loves spending quality time with her family, including her husband and 3 month old son! She enjoys having friends over for homecooked meals, baking (and to share), trail running and doing barre exercises. She has ran 4 half marathons and hopes to complete another one in Los Angeles during residency!

Kit is married to his wife Hannah and they have a toddler named Forest, and an infant daughter named Rose. Hannah is a professional photographer and therapist. He loves spending time with his family, especially outdoors in the mountains or the red-rock canyons of Southern Utah. They all look forward to spending more time at the beach. After college and before starting medical school

Kit spent many hours trail running in the foothills of Salt Lake City, worked transporting patients in a hospital, completed a Graduate Certificate in Global Health at the University of Utah, and sold his artwork at galleries art fairs. During medical school he continued to find time for art by designing t-shirts and logos for different medical school organizations, as well as a mural for his medical school's health sciences library. He also enjoys traveling, learning about different cultures, can say greetings in over 20 languages, and is conversational in Spanish and Malaysian.

Sheeva grew up in Orange County, CA. After graduating from UC Irvine, she discovered her love for traveling. She realized that there is so much beauty in the world that she has yet to see. Since then, she and her husband have made visiting Europe a yearly tradition. When she's not with her two dogs, George and Leah, she's talking about them. They are also her biggest fans in the kitchen now that she has started to learn how to cook Iranian dishes from her dad and Filipino recipes from her mom. She loves hot yoga, good music, and spending time with friends and family.
