

BOOT CAMP FOR NEW DADS

A MERCED COUNTY HUMAN SERVICES AGENCY PROGRAM

is a three-hour workshop taught by fathers. Utilizing a man-to-man approach, veteran dads and their babies orient rookie dads who are expecting their first baby. This combination— rookies, veterans, and babies—in a room for three hours makes for great chemistry. The rookies are all eyes and ears as they watch the veterans feed, burp, change, and care for their babies while hearing their experiences and advice. A strong sense of solidarity quickly develops between these men and peaks when the veterans give their babies to the rookies for hands-on training. There are few other opportunities for new dads to obtain the insights of other men on the challenges of becoming a father.
