Shouldn't America come up with a health care system that has one?

If you believe, as we do, that health care is a basic human right, then universal health care is a must. It'll take the best minds from many fields to make it a reality, but it's imperative that we do so. A system that guarantees access to medical care will make our country stronger. And a system founded on compassion will make our country better. Join the conversation on how best to put the "care" back in health care at blog.chwHEALTH.org.
